His chest felt tight. Injured plaintiff thereafter sought medical attention for the cough for the first time. He did not know whether this was a one-time occurrence, the beginning of a serious medical issue or merely the start of a bad cold or flu. Fire Department doctors immediately placed injured plaintiff on medical leave, with a tentative partial diagnosis of tracheitis. Under advice of his doctors, injured plaintiff began undergoing various diagnostic tests to determine the cause of his breathing problems. On November 13, 2006, injured plaintiff THOMAS MCGOFF underwent a radiological examination. Based on the results, his doctor advised him that an "opacity" was visible in his lung, and such may be a manifestation of serious pulmonary disease such as inflammatory disease, compressive atelectasis, adenomatous hyperplasia, and bronchioloalveolar cell carcinoma. In March 2007, injured plaintiff's doctors advised him that he may have obstructive airway dysfunction. Injured plaintiff continues to undergo diagnostic testing, in an effort to pinpoint what is causing his pulmonary problems. To date injured plaintiff's doctors have diagnosed him with tracheitis; pulmonary inflammatory disease; compressive atelectasis; focal airspace disease; atypical	<input type="checkbox"/>	Fear of Cancer Date of onset: _____ Date physician first connected this injury to WTC work: _____
